TROUBLE AVERTED.

By the Unconditional Surrender of the Democrats

AND THE CHOICE OF ALDERMAN SWIFT

To be Mayor Pro Tem. of Chicago
—What Might Have Been a Serious Row Ends in a Perfect Love Feast.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—"With great pleasure and not in any critical sense; with feelings of personal pleasure I declare George B. Swift elected mayor pro tem. of the city of Chicago."

This announcement from Alderman John McGillen, presiding officer of the Chicago common council was greeted with applause and marked the peaceful end of the crisis in the municipal government which threatened to become most serious.

The democratic minority of the council surrendered unconditionally to their opponents just before the opening of the regular meeting of the council last night. The overtures for peace were made by the steering committee of the democrats, they realizing that their cause was hopeless, either on a secret ballot or an open one.

The faces of the aldermen, all of whom were present, were wreathed in smiles, and the meeting throughout partook of the nature of a love feast and mutual admiration society.

Reading Clerk Nuemaster opened the meeting by calling the roll, and when the announcement was made that the sixty-eight aldermen were present Alderman Kent moved that Alderman McGillen take the chair, which he did.

The next move in the line of a peaceful settlement of the trouble was the adoption without reading of the minutes of Saturday's turbulent meeting, held by the democrats alone. The spirit of peace and good will was so strong that some of the aldermen wanted the chairman, as a graceful compliment to Alderman Swift, to cast a unanimous ballot for the mayor pro tem., but Alderman McGillen ruled it out of order. Four tellers were then appointed to watch the ballot box which was placed in a conspicuous position in front of the reading clerk's desk.

While the ballots were being cast Alderman Epstein of the First ward arose to denounce the rumors about his running away and the charge of having cast the bank ballot Saturday as false. He declared that the reason the thirty-seven republican aldermen had been locked up all day was that they could not be trusted and the inference was that everybody knew he was the only honest man in the council, at which everybody laughed. It was plain to see who would be the choice of the council by the numerous handshakings and congratulations which was observed at Alderman Swift's desk during the balloting. Everybody wanted to get into the bandwagon.

Alderman O'Neill, as senior teller, announced that the whole number of votes cast had been 69, of which George B. Swift received 50 and John McGillen 19. He explained that the extra ballot had been cast by two being folded together, and Chairman McGillen denounced such tactics in the severest terms as unworthy of aldermen and gentlemen. That there might be no mistake it was decided by the chair that the ballot was void and that another should be taken. He also asked that the next ballot be unanimous for his opponent. The second and decisive ballot resulted as follows: Swift, 62; McGillen, 5; blank, 1. This announcement was greeted with general applause.

Chairman McGillen in introducing the mayor pro tem. to the council enfolded him and expressed entire confidence in his willingness to conserve the interest of the people while acting mayor. Three aldermen were chosen to escort the acting mayor to the chair amid more applause.

Alderman Swift said he would endeavor in all his actions to continue to merit the good will, esteem and approbation of his colleagues and the citizens of Chicago. He was personally gratified at the action of the council, and believed the citizens would be also when they learned of the happy solution to-night of what might have been a serious matter.

The council adjourned until next Thursday night, after arranging for Harrison memorial services to be held a week from next Thursday by the council. The corridors of the city hall were packed with politicians and other people who were rigidly excluded from the council chamber, and so were ignorant of the love feast being held there.

CLOSED THE SHOPS.
Refused to Work on Sunday Himself or to Allow Others to Do So.

WILLIAMSBURG, Pa., Nov. 6.—Sunday work in the Philadelphia & Reading repair shops at Newbury junction, owing to the threat of Andrew Anderson, a discharged employe, that he would make information against the men for violating the Sunday law. Seventy-five men refused to work unless guaranteed protection by the company. A satisfactory arrangement was not made, and Anderson had the satisfaction of seeing the success of his threat. He was discharged for refusing to work on Sunday.

THE DISASTER AT SANTANDER.

The Bottom of the Bay Strawn With Mangled Bodies.

MADRID, Nov. 7.—Fernandez Sanz, captain of the steamship Cabo Machicao, which was blown up at Santander on Friday, arrived at San Sebastian yesterday. He says that the explosion sent the steamer's engines fifty yards into the air. Sixty-five houses were wrecked from roof to cellar by the shock. The divers have been busy since Sunday noon examining the harbor near the quay where the explosion occurred. They have found piles of mangled bodies among the ruins of the sunken vessel. In one pile the remnants of eleven bodies were found; in another the severed limbs and trunks of twenty-five more.

The work of collecting the bodies proceeds slowly, Capt. Sanz says, because the bodies under the water can be extricated only with the greatest difficulty from the wreckage in which they have been wedged and half buried. The military are clearing away the ruins on land.

The suffering among the people of Santander is extreme. The shops did not begin opening until yesterday afternoon. The bakers have not made bread, and the markets are empty. The minister of finance is superintending the work of relief.

NOT HER HUSBAND.

But a Share of His Property Was What Mrs. Wilson Wanted.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 7.—United States Marshal Hawkins arrived in the city yesterday afternoon from Birmingham, Ala., accompanied by Dr. S. R. Wilson, Rosa Wilson, his wife, and Nora Scott, the doctor's paramour.

About a week ago the doctor, who resides at Fairbank, Ind., near Terre Haute, left his wife and child and eloped with Mrs. James Scott, while her husband and two children were at the World's fair. When the elopement became known Mrs. Wilson placed the facts in Marshal Hawkins' hands. He traced the pair to Birmingham, where they were registered at the Metropolitan hotel as C. G. Fitzer and wife.

They agreed to accompany the marshal to this city, where the legal papers were drawn up for the transfer of certain property by Dr. Wilson to his wife. This property includes their home and a large amount of real estate in Sullivan county. After the conveyances were made Mrs. Wilson said she was satisfied, and the doctor was free to go where he pleased. The parties concerned are very prominent and wealthy residents of Sullivan county, and the disgraceful affair has greatly shocked society.

A BLUE BOOK
Issued by the British Government Concerning the War in South Africa.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The government issued a blue book yesterday concerning the war between the Matabeles and the forces of the South Africa Chartered Co. The negotiations between Sir Henry Loch, governor of Cape Colony, and King Lobengula are related at great length. During September and October Loch tried to reach a peaceful settlement with the king.

On October 5, he sent to Lobengula a message, expressing regret that the king's indignas had been killed. At the same time Loch explained that Lobengula had given no assurance that he would cease raiding on the Mashonaland. It was too late to stop the companies advancing from Fort Victoria and Fort Charter. Loch was still willing, however, to receive the natives for a peaceful settlement.

On October 30 the Marquis of Ripon, colonial secretary, telegraphed Loch that he had ceased communicating with Lobengula.

THE HUCKEYE ELECTION.
Ex-Gov. Campbell Confident of a Democratic Victory.

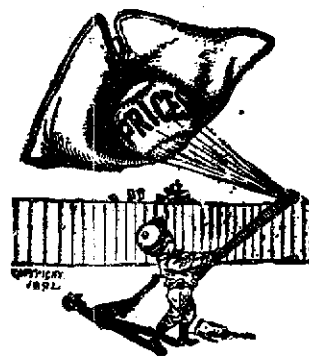

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 7.—In conversation with a reporter about the result of to-day's election in Ohio, ex-Gov. Campbell said yesterday: "If superficial indications may be relied upon, we will carry the state. I have not been in the state long enough to get the general trend of sentiment, but I have had such large meetings and found the democrats so enthusiastic here I went that I judge they are thoroughly aroused and sympathetic."

Awful Fate of a Perjuror.
BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Herr Meissner, a notorious pamphleteer from this city, was found dead on the plain last Saturday near Jaffa, Palestine. His body had been torn by jackalls. Near him lay an empty bottle, from which he is supposed to have taken a dose of poison.

Meissner was one of the witnesses called to support Ahlwardt's charge made in the Reichstag that Dr. Miguel, Prussian finance minister, had perpetrated a great fraud some twenty years ago in connection with the affairs of the Roumanian railway. Immediately after Ahlwardt's case fell through Meissner disappeared, and for a time nothing was heard of him.

Wholesale Arrest of Anarchists.
BERLIN, Nov. 7.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger, from Milan, says that the police of that city surprised a meeting of anarchists Sunday and made sixty-three arrests. Among the persons taken into custody were delegates from Bergamo, Brescia, Monza and Milan. A large number of documents were seized.

OLD-TIME MEMORIES.

Mrs. Eleanor Gorin, of Decatur, Ill., Talks of Early Chicago.

She Lived Here When the City was an Infant, with Few White People and Thousands of Indians—"Father" Walker was Her Step-father, and She Tells Some Interesting Stories of His Career—Reminiscences of People and Places in the Early Days.

Chicago Tribune, October 26.
DECATUR, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special Correspondence.]—There dwells in Decatur a pious and motherly old lady who lived in Chicago when in the spelling-books of the '30's the name was spelled "Chick-ago," and when only a few white people and thousands of Indians were in the vicinity of old Fort Dearborn. Her name is Mrs. Eleanor E. D. Gorin, wife of the Hon. Jerome R. Gorin, who has lived in Decatur for half a century as a merchant and banker, and is a leading member of the First M. E. Church. He was at one time Eminent Commander of the Illinois Commandery, Knights Templar, and is a thirty-second degree Mason. He has a comfortable home on Prairie avenue, one of the fashionable streets of the city, and by his courtesy the Tribune correspondent was privileged to meet Mrs. Gorin and chat with her about the early history of Chicago.

Five years of her girlhood, from 11 to 17, were spent among the Indians in and near Chicago, and before she left in 1838 she could speak the Indian tongue quite fluently. Even now, after the lapse of nearly sixty years, she can speak many Indian words, accompanied by the invariable but much-meaning motions of the aborigines. Mrs. Gorin was asked to give some of her recollections of Chicago, and in an easy and conversational manner she readily responded.

REMEMBERS CHICAGO WHEN IT WAS A BABY.

"O, yes," she replied, "I remember Chicago when it was a baby. I lived there when my mother said she could stand in her front door and count all of the dwellings in the place. I was but 11 years old when I first saw Chicago. That was in October, 1833, just sixty years ago. I lived there five years, coming back to Decatur in 1838. My father was Isaac Fawcett and I was born in Virginia. My maiden name was Eleanor Elizabeth Douglas Fawcett. Father died after he came west, and after several years mother married the Rev. Jesse Walker, who was reverentially called Father Walker by all of the Indians and the white people. The marriage occurred in 1833 in Chicago, and the Rev. William See, a Methodist minister who lived south of Chicago, officiated.

"I cannot tell exactly how big Chicago was then—I was not quite 11 years old. After Father Walker died mother and I left Chicago and came to Decatur. That was in 1838. There were over 8,000 people there then. Chicago was only a village in 1833, with only two streets—Lake street, close by the lake, and Water street, and the ground was quite marshy. The town was close to where the two rivers, the North Fork and the South Fork, came in to form the Chicago River. I can remember the first merchants and their stores. They were James, John and Robert Kinzie, who were partners, and Jones & King, and Mr. Conant. There were just three stores in '33. Mrs. Gales and her daughter Nancy Gales were the milliners. Mrs. Cox kept what was called a tavern, and then there was the Wolf Tavern. I remember when they put up the Lake House. In that day they thought it was the finest house in the United States. It was a big, two-story frame, and was indeed quite a large building for Chicago then, but I don't suppose there were more than twenty rooms in it. The published picture of it looks just as natural as can be. I remember it well, the first large hotel. The first schoolmaster was John Watkins, and he was also the first editor. I don't remember the name of his paper; we all called it just the newspaper. It had a name, of course, but I have forgotten it.

NEWSPAPERS WERE SCARCEN.

"Newspapers were not plentiful then as now, nor were there as many scholars and schools. The first physicians were Dr. Meecham, Dr. Minor, Dr. Eldridge, Dr. Underwood, who was the first phrenologist, and Dr. Goodrich. There were two lawyers, Mr. Peck and Mr. Collins. Father Walker was the only Protestant minister there in 1833. There was a church, but one was built soon after we came to Chicago. The Rev. John S. Barger and the Rev. Colonel were ministers who came after Father Walker. The Potawatomi Indians were the original owners of the land where Chicago now stands. They were friendly Indians and made no trouble. I remember quite well when the agent of the government made payment to the Indians for the land and when the treaty was signed. Billy Owlwell was the Indian Agent at Chicago. At no time was there any trouble with the Potawatomis. It was old Black Hawk and the Indians of the Black Hawk war. It was in 1834 that Billy Owlwell came on horseback from Chicago to Washington (Ill.) to have the Indian treaty ratified. Before that there were but very few white people there, only Indians and 80 soldiers in Fort Dearborn. The old fort, I remember it well. The white people were afraid to come before 1834.

"In the latter part of 1833 Glenside Lathrop and his brother-in-law, Alex. Robinson, Chief of the Potawatomi tribe, received money from the government in payment for the land, also blankets, blue broadcloth, blue calico, tobacco, clay pipes, ribbons, beads, etc. They had the money in two bags. They had no confidence in each other and they wanted the money counted, and they carried it to Father Walker's house. It was all in silver half dollars. They poured the money out on a table and I don't know how much money there was, but after it was counted it was stacked in a trunk. It was said that the Indians got about three cents per acre for the land.

CHICAGO BEGINS TO GROW.

"After the treaty was ratified, Chicago began to grow rapidly. Eastern people kept pouring in and taking up claims. They could get land at $1.25 an acre if they were actual settlers. Father Walker was the first Methodist missionary in the West. He was sent out by the general conference which met in Baltimore, Md., and he preached to the Indians through an interpreter. He had done missionary work among the Indians before Illinois was admitted to the Union in 1818. He established the first Methodist church at St. Louis. I wish I could tell you all the good things about Father Walker. He was truly a noble man. Everything had to be settled for the Indians by him; anything he said was 'law and gospel' with the Indians; they had perfect confidence in him and loved him dearly. They mourned for him when he died and sent stripes and black dots on their faces. Because of Father Walker's work in the early days of Chicago I have always felt an interest in the city, but my mother bought two lots on Water street and was swindled out of them. She was to pay $500 and had paid $250 and when she went to pay the balance she learned that the party with whom she contracted had no title in them; the deal was a swindle and because of that experience I have always felt a little hurt. Those lots are quite valuable now.

"Father Walker moved from Chicago in the fall of 1833 ten miles west, where he bought a lot of land. It was near what was then known as the Fox River, now called the Des Plaines. He had land on both sides of the river, and as there was no bridge, Father Walker built one himself. It was but a rough affair, but it answered the purpose. It was at least two hundred feet long. When the government put the first road through to Galena it was built through Father Walker's land. Before the bridge was built Father Walker used to ferry people, horses and vehicles across the river by using two Indian canoes, on which he built a rude platform, which answered the purpose very well. There were only three bridges over the Chicago river—one called a "draw bridge," but it lifted upward from the center to an angle to let the boats through. Father Walker died in 1835 at the age of 68 years. He was buried at Pleasant field and the ministers of the Rock River conference erected a monument over his grave. He was known as 'the Pioneer Preacher of the West.'

INTENDED TO FOUND "ECONOMY."

"It was the purpose of Father Walker before he died to establish a town at his home place. He had selected a name for it, Illinois spelt backwards, 'Snomilli,' and the night he died a kiln of 100,000 brick had been burned for him by a man named Josiah Blodgett. He had planned to build a large hotel with the brick. A few years ago I tried to find the location of my old home. It is somewhere near Oak Park, and in company with Mrs. E. Brown, who resides at Oak Park, I drove to where I thought was the old ground. It is close to the old town of Cassanovia. I tried in vain to locate the point where the old bridge had been built, but fifty years had wrought so many changes that I was really lost at my old home.

"Father Walker helped lay off some of the streets of Chicago early in the spring of 1834. They sent for him to assist in the work. I remember when he came home he told us that most of the streets were named for the Presidents and that one was named Dearborn after the fort. How well I remember old 'Fort Dearborn.' After the treaty the soldiers were sent to Green Bay, Wis. We did not need them any more at Chicago. There were eighty soldiers and I remember they went right past our house. The old bridge shook when they marched across it.

"There were any amount of Indians in and around Chicago. I remember that on one occasion I saw over 500 in one body. They came to Chicago to have a dance on the dancing ground, which was about half a mile west of the lake shore. The white people went out to see them dance and to give them presents. We got word about the approach of the Indians, but when they came we were nearly frightened into fits. They came to our house expecting to see Father Walker, but he had gone away 40 miles distant with mother to get a load of provisions. They were much disappointed because he was not at home. We had just finished getting dinner when the Indians came. We all ran away, and when we came back we found that the Indians had eaten every bit of our dinner, and even took the pudding off the clock. It was a shame and bright things always attended an Indian. I shall never forget that. They took some of the knives and spoons and left the forks; it was so strange, for they have no use for forks. Father Walker said, when he returned, that if he had been there he would have killed an ox and given them a barbecue. We had a little Indian girl with us, half Indian and half French, named Monique Muller. When the old Indian, Robinson, her uncle, gave her to Father Walker he requested him to rear her as a white child. When the Indians came she was so badly frightened as we were, but the invaders were quiet people and did no injury to any one. They made the journey every fall and always took everything before them.

ERA OF PUFFED SLEEVES.

"They say the fashion now in dress is the 1850 style. It was 1835 before the present big puffs in dresses came out. At that time we padded puffs inside our sleeves. We took two yards of material and folded it cornerwise and cut off the

It was told by the Indians that Lake Michigan would rise seven years and fall seven years. When we came away in 1838 the lake was rising and they had to use stepping blocks on Lake street. I don't remember whether the people were frightened or not, but the water washed away the sand-bar on which George E. Walker and Jim Kinzie had houses. The rise of the water ruined both men financially. Walker was a nephew of Father Walker's. I well remember that all through what is now known as the 'West Side' it was swampy. I do not think I will ever visit Chicago again, but if I do it will be at a time when the old settlers meet again."

In to-morrow's issue of the REPUBLICAN will appear additional recollections of Mrs. Gorin about Chicago, which were not published in the Tribune.

Just the Thing.

The DAILY REPUBLICAN has just completed arrangements with a mammoth publishing house to furnish new subscribers with the famous White House Cook Book at actual cost of production. This book has never sold for less than $2.50 alone. For a few days the REPUBLICAN will offer the book and four weeks subscription to the paper for only $1.00. Although edited by the ex-chef of the White House, the book has been compiled with a strict view to practical everyday requirements of the family, from the most economical stand point, whereby many dollars can be saved every year.

The book is handsomely bound in white enamel cloth and can be wiped off with a damp cloth when soiled and made to appear as bright as new. To old subscribers we will furnish this book for $1.20. We extend this courtesy to old subscribers only. The book will not be sold to any one except subscribers to the REPUBLICAN. Some idea may be obtained of the importance of this book from the fact that it was the only cook book admitted to the Woman's Building at the World's Fair for exhibition.

Mantell in Monbars.

"Monbars," which is to be given at the Grand on Thursday evening, is a play with a strong plot, in which the interest is not merely sustained, but grows into a powerful climax. The hero is a man of humble birth who has founded a fortune by preying on English commerce with his privateer, and increased it by founding a great ship yard. Mr. Mantell belongs to the robust school of acting, but unlike many actors, he is capable of curbing his impetuosity and never overdoes the part. Ranting is something he is never guilty of, and he is as strong and effective in his tender and delicate passages as he is in his more tragic roles. Take him in his love-making, or in a rage, and his work is always characterized by a finish that bears the stamp of art. In short he invests the role with a realism and earnestness of purpose that is as remarkable as it is pleasing and commendable.

Card Party.

Miss Lnetta Ulrich entertained a company of friends last evening at her home on West Decatur street. The first part of the evening was devoted to cards. The prize for the ladies, a handsome vase, was won by Miss Belle Burrows; the gentlemen's prize, a pair of what counters, was taken by Frank Evans. After supper had been served, dancing was enjoyed. The party was in honor of Miss Nan Jordan, of Gloucester, Mass., Miss Ulrich's guest. The company included Misses Lucille Duffel-Louis and Sarah Boyd, Grace Shellabarger, Ella Rao, Belle Burrows, Corinne Shellabarger, Mary Voorhies, Miss Litterer of California, and Messrs Frank Evans, R. I. Hunt, Arthur Race, Guy Parke, Lew Eymann, John Clingston, James Coop, Linn Blackstone and Kyle Bohon.

The Club Meeting.

At the regular meeting of the Woman's Club, Monday afternoon, the Chautauque Division had charge of the literary program, under the leadership of Miss K. H. Ruby. A paper on economics, read by Mrs. H. C. Johns, in which the writer approved women entering the labor field equally with men, provoked an interesting and profitable discussion. Excellent music was furnished by Mrs. Blanche Huff and Miss Lola Montgomery.

Cashier Thompson Turns State's Evidence.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Lewis Thompson, the cashier of the Madison Square bank, has turned state's evidence in order to clear his skirts of the criminal charges against him. This step on the part of Mr. Thompson practically means that the charges of perjury and fraudulent bankruptcy that are standing against him will be dismissed, and that President Blauvelt and the directors of the Madison Square bank will be deeper in the mire than ever. The charge upon which Thompson is held is perjury in swearing to a public statement of the affairs of the bank.

They bring news that Chief Wells has extended the time limit given the whites until to-night to leave the reservation. The Indians are camped three miles from Harrison holding war dances. A band of 300 horses belonging to a rancher on the St. Joe river was stampeded Sunday night and runners say the Indians are preparing a big feast. THE IRON HALL RECEIVERSHIP.

The Final Struggle to Get the Affairs of the Order Back Into Its Own Hands.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 7.—The final struggle to oust the receiver of the Iron Hall and get its affairs back into the hands of the order as reorganized, was begun before Judge Winters in the superior court yesterday. The present trial is one to settle the question of the order's insolvency, the supreme court having held that the only thing to have cut a figure in the appointment of the receiver should have been a positive showing of facts by which the order's bankruptcy was proven.

An agreed statement of facts was submitted, showing the financial condition of the order when the action was begun, and the status of the various funds at present. Argument proceeded on the mooted point as to whether or not future liabilities should have been considered in determining the solvency of the order.

THANKS FOR SHANKS.

He denied the truth of the statements published of an alleged scene arising from the speech he made at a banquet in Chicago. There was, he said, no discordant note. Letters sent from Dublin had been intended to prepare for him a hotel rather than a warm reception in Chicago; but these had been received with good natured contempt.

Upon the conclusion of Lord Mayor's remarks the corporation unanimously adopted a vote of thanks to the citizens of Chicago for the reception they had accorded the Lord Mayor.

Owner—I don't see what difference that should make.

Book-keeper—You are probably not aware, sir, that he has six daughters, and they are all studying music.—N. Y. Weekly.

No Fear.

"Nonsense!" was the prompt reply.

"Your hand will shake far too much for you to hit so small a mark as that."

THE CITY LEGISLATURE.

Veto of the Wine-Room Ordinance Amendment - Original Adopted 9 to 4.

All of the aldermen were present last night except Stewart. The Shade amendment to the wine-room ordinance adopted in a hurry Oct. 30th was knocked out. The ordinance was returned to the council unsigned by the Mayor with this veto:

"To the Honorable Body of the City Council of Decatur: Gentlemen—I cannot concur with you as to the amendment to strike out that part of the ordinance between the words 'for' in the fifth line and 'law' in the seventh line. I do hereby return said ordinance without my signature as the amendment virtually kills the original ordinance. In good faith, D. C. MORGAN, Mayor."

Alderman Holman moved that the mayor be sustained and the motion carried by a vote of 12 to 1, all the aldermen voting yes but Shade.

A motion was then made to pass the original ordinance. This was seconded. Ald. Shade got up and made an amendment to the motion that the ordinance be referred to the ordinance committee. The amendment was knocked out by a vote of 8 to 5. Voting aye: Bramble, Johnson, Shade, Watkins and White. Voting nay: Bartholomew, Dodd, Ferguson, Holman, Irwin, Knight, Montgomery and Williams.

The passage of the original ordinance was then voted on and carried by a vote of 9 to 4. Voting aye: Bartholomew, Dodd, Ferguson, Holman, Irwin, Knight, Montgomery, Williams and Watkins. Voting nay: Bramble, Shade, Johnson and White.

THE ORDINANCE.

The original ordinance as adopted reads as follows and shuts out all private rooms whether for low purposes or for the private entertainment of customers: That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons operating, owning, keeping or controlling any saloon or dram shop in the city of Decatur, to keep, maintain, operate or use in connection with such saloon or dram shop any private room, rooms, apartments or gardens, or place for low, vicious, disorderly, immoral or noxious purposes, or for the purpose of screening any person or persons from public view. WOOLLEY AND BEST ISLAND.

Lecture on Temperance Heard by a Big Audience.

The noted John G. Woolley, of Minnesota, kept his engagement in Decatur last night and delivered his temperance lecture on "Inalienable Rights" in the audience room of the First M. E. church, under the auspices of the Decatur Christian Endeavor Union. Had the admission been 25 or 50 cents, somebody would have made a pile of money, for the room was packed from organ lot to the doors, like it used to be when Tommy Harrison was conducting his revival meeting. The side aisles were crowded to the amen corners and at the rear people stood up during the entire meeting. It was a great ovation to the lecturer and the Endeavor Union, and demonstrated that christian people and some politicians are willing to listen to anything that can be said in the interest of sobriety and moral reform. Mr. Woolley, Rev. D. F. Howe, Devoit Strader and Rev. C. E. Torrey occupied chairs on the rostrum. "Praise God" and "America" were the opening hymns announced by Mr. Strader, and Rev. Howe offered the introductory prayer. Rev. Torrey introduced the lecturer in an earnest address, in which he spoke especially of the noble work undertaken by the young people of the churches. He said he was proud to represent them and be one of them in the good work.

Mr. Woolley did not waste any time in prefatory remarks. He is a reformed drunkard and has been a lawyer. He is below the median height, is of slight build, wears a mustache and has dark hair, which is parted in the middle. His style of delivery is positive and argumentative, and he is so rapid in his delivery that he commands attention. At one time in the course of his lecture a number of young girls near the front were giggling or talking, when John G. quickly rebuked them by saying: "Now, girls, listen to me awhile," and then went on with his talk. Mr. Woolley spoke directly to the christian people and in his argument placed the responsibility for the existence of the liquor traffic upon all church members individually and as societies. The gist of the address was that the christian people can legislate the business out of the country, if they will. He was tired of temporizing with the traffic. He wanted christian people to stand up and be men. Mr. Woolley, as stated, has been a drinker himself. He knows all the ins and outs of the saloons, and he knows how a drunkard feels, and what acts of immorality and crime whisky will drive him to in the course of his life. He ridiculed the license system, and related a number of amusing and pathetic stories to emphasize his points. In closing, Mr. Woolley described Best Island, a refuge for fallen drunkards, established by him near Minneapolis. Drunkards who want to reform can go there and live until they feel they will be able to go out into the world again. The lecture was heard with manifest interest and was generally commended.

The Endeavor Union had to pledge Mr. Woolley $50 for the benefit of Best Island Mission. The collection taken was little short of the necessary amount, but Mr. Woolley received the fifty dollars.

Mrs. John Drew.

Mrs. John Drew is another of those sterling actresses who need no introduction to a Decatur audience. Her approaching engagement to-morrow night is creating considerable talk, and it is safe to say she will be greeted by a large house. As an exponent of comedy she is an adept. Her supporting company is an unusually strong one, and one of the best of entertainments is anticipated. The company which includes Mrs. John Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, Mr. Owen Fawcett, Mr. McKee Rankin, Mr. Charles Erin Verner and others will present Sheridan's "Rivals" at the Grand. This is one of the best companies in America.

The Miller Case.

In the circuit court at Tuscola yesterday Judge Day decided to take up the famous Diamond-Miller shooting case from Arcola on Wednesday at noon. It is believed that most of the week will be lost trying to secure a jury. The case is as much of a mystery to-day as ever, and no motive can be imagined for the killing other than a business disagreement.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Boy Knocked Down by a Street Car has a Close Call for His Life.

A lad, whose name could not be learned, was knocked down by a street car and miraculously escaped an awful death. When Motorman Will Morgan turned the corner with his car at Front street he noticed two boys wrestling between Morgan and Broadway streets, and when he got nearer discovered they were contending for the possession of a chicken. They were then a number of feet from the track. Just as he got to them one of the boys succeeded in getting possession of the fowl and, turning, ran directly in front of the street car. It was then too late for the motorman to use the brake to any advantage. The lad was knocked down under the car, and as luck would have it he was pushed from danger by the guard, from which the dust and dirt were rubbed as clean as if a scrub brush had been used. The chicken, however, did not escape, but was killed. The affair was witnessed by quite a number, who expected to see a most horrifying sight. The boy was not injured, but getting up accompanied off before his name could be learned.

FIRESIDE FRAGMENTS.

Baked Squash.—Pare the squash, remove the seeds and steam until it is tender; mash it, season with butter, pepper and salt and add one-half pint of bread or cracker crumbs. Stir this well and put it in a greased baking dish and bake one hour. The half pint of bread crumbs is sufficient for one medium-sized squash.—Prairie Farmer.

Sponge Drops.—Two eggs thoroughly beaten, two cups of sugar, one-half cup of butter, one cup of sweet milk, three teaspoons lemon or vanilla to baking powder, lemon or vanilla to suit taste; add flour to make little thicker than cake, cream the eggs and sugar, add the butter and beat rapidly, then add the milk, stirring all together, then the flour with the baking powder, stir until thick enough to drop from a spoon.—Home.

"Little Pigs in Blankets."—They make a delicious dish for entertainment, and are made as follows: Take nice breakfast bacon, trim off the rind and ragged edges, and slice as thin as possible. Be careful to keep the lean streaks whole, as they represent the borders on the blankets; fold the border ends over the oysters, making both edges of the blankets meet, and pin together with wooden toothpicks. Broil in butter and serve hot.—Farm and Fireside.

English Muffins.—Dissolve one-half cake of yeast in one quart of tepid water, one teaspoonful of salt, and enough flour to make a thin batter. Let it stand all night. Early next morning beat the batter well; set in a warm place, and let it rise. Bake on a griddle, turning only once. Simple as this recipe sounds, it requires experience to tell the right consistency of the batter, and just the right heat at which to cook these muffins of our grandmothers. They will present rather a shapeless appearance, as they are dropped from a spoon, but they should be crisp, light, and without a suspicion of toughness. If well made they are delicious.—Good Housekeeping.

Coffee Ice Cream (Delicious).—Two cups of sugar and the yolks of four eggs beaten together thoroughly. Pour over the mixture a pint of boiling milk, and stir the whole for two or three minutes. Put the basin containing this custard on a hot part of the stove and continue stirring, but do not let it boil. Take the custard off the fire, add to it a pint of sweet cream, stir again, and throw in two large tablespoons of fresh ground Mocha coffee. Beat the mixture thoroughly over the fire for about three minutes, then cover the cream closely, so that the coffee can infuse through it for about an hour. At the end of this time it should be thoroughly cold. Strain it through a napkin and freeze.—Boston Budget.

Pot Roast Beef.—Put the roast into a pot with water enough to come to the top of the meat. Put in salt and pepper and set over a hot fire and boil long enough to cook the meat perfectly tender. When the meat is tender take the top off the pot and let the water boil low so the grease will fry in the pot and brown a little. Watch carefully and don't let it burn. When slightly brown pour enough boiling water into the pot to make gravy and thicken with flour which has been smoothly mixed with a little cold water. Now put the top on the pot and set it where it will simmer for ten or fifteen minutes. It is now ready to eat. I think this is better and easier than cooking in the oven.—Detroit Free Press.

"Any Port in a Storm."—But in a moment of calm reasoning try "Royal Ruby Port Wine." It is the purest and best wine of its class. Good body, excellent flavor and great strength. Economical too for medicinal and family use. Let it convince you itself! Quart bottles $1.00, pint 60 cts. For sale by Dr. A. J. Stoner. Bottled by Royal Wine Co., Chicago.

LOST.—A lady's gold watch with heart-shaped chain. Return to 117 South Main street up-stairs, and receive reward.

Four Dollars for Two.

We have a lot of Plain Toe Shoes for Ladies which we want to sell. They are $4 shoes and are sold for this money all over the country. They cost $2.75 at wholesale and cannot now be bought in stringent times for less than $2.50 per pair, all the payment to be cash. We intend to sell these shoes at the unheard-of price of $2.00 per pair until all are gone. We have these shoes in almost all sizes, in opera and common sense toes. Widths from A to E, but most of them narrow widths. Ladies who can wear a narrow width shoe should come at once for these shoes, for we are certain to be able to fit them. We are likely to fit you in any event, and we want to tell you that this is the chance of a lifetime to secure as fine a ladies' shoe as is made at 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR. Come and see them. "Nothing succeeds like success," and nothing will more quickly insure success than true merit. For fifty years Ayer's Sarsaparilla has maintained its popularity as the superior blood-purifier. It stands upon its own merits and never fails to give satisfaction.

The good work is still going on in the Pacific Express company's depot office. Arrangements are being made for the use of some special scenery which has been left at the office for some time, and which they will take up on the south side. It will aid somewhat in keeping the frost out.

The funeral of the late John A. Kennedy, which took place from St. Patrick's Catholic church yesterday afternoon, was very largely attended. Rev. Father Boyle conducted the service. Goodman's Band led the cortege, and members of the Railway Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association served as escort. Among the many floral offerings were a white cross, a pillow of white with a link and pin in red, a broken wheel, the gates of ivory, and a number of other flowers. In addition to the switchmen a number of trainmen walked in the procession which was perhaps one of the longest ever seen in Decatur. The pall-bearers, all members of the Aid Association, were John Ryan, Andrew Lowenstein, George Kelso, John Conway, Owen McCune and Clarence Kelso. The interment was in the Catholic cemetery.

THE Wabash will continue its St. Louis-Chicago and Chicago-St. Louis fast day train service with the winter schedule. This is one of the best equipped passenger trains in the country. It runs on time and its safe service is unsurpassed.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING.

Orea Keefe, Son of James Keefe, the Victim of a Bullet.

James Tidrow, who is known as a detective, resides in the western part of the city, and frequently visits the Keefe & Sons grocery store at the corner of St. Louis and Oakland avenues. He was there last night and as usual got into a playful scuffle with the boys. The other night somebody threw a brick at Tidrow as he was going home. Then he had his big revolver with him. Orea Keefe, aged 17, asked Tidrow if he had his gun with him last night. He said that he did not, that he had left it at home. Orea said he would get his gun, all in fun, and he began looking for a toy pistol that was somewhere in the store. Ellsworth Taylor found it, and handed it to Tidrow, who in the meantime had been scuffling with young Keefe. When he got the toy pistol, not knowing or believing that it was loaded, Tidrow caught Orea by the collar and pointing the pistol directly at his face at close range pulled the trigger. To everybody's surprise there was a clicking report and the bullet, smaller than a 22, penetrated Orea's upper lip, struck a tooth and bounced back on the floor. The boy cried out "My God," but did not fall as Tidrow held him up. The boy began to tremble and as blood issued from his mouth, Tidrow imagined that Orea was fatally hurt. Considerable excitement ensued and in the midst of it Dr. Chenoweth arrived to make an examination and give surgical attention. He said it was a close call for the boy's life. James Keefe had but little to say. He recognized the fact that the shooting was totally accidental, that Tidrow and his son were good friends and that Tidrow had not intended to shoot his boy; but nevertheless he said: "It's a wonder you are not all killed, the way you carry on." Mr. Tidrow came near fainting. He was in an agony of suspense until the doctor came to state that the bullet had on only gone through the lip and that there would be no serious results. Mrs. Keefe was not inclined to excuse Tidrow, and it was with difficulty that she was pacified. Mr. Tidrow remained at the store until it was closed, and when he went home he was unable to sleep. Every time he would drop off into a doze he would be awakened by horrible dreams about killing Orea Keefe, and being in jail. He even dreamed of mob violence. To-day Mr. Tidrow is feeling very badly about the incident. He said he would rather have shot himself than Orea. He admits that he did a foolish act in firing even a toy pistol at the lad. He has no excuse to offer except that he didn't know it was loaded. Orea Keefe will recover and the bullet hole will leave but a slight scar.

THE EDNA GOLD MINE.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY. Information comes from Denver, Col., to the effect that recently Manager Nagely and Secretary Day and the other officials of the Edna Gold mine property, in the Sugar Land District, Boulder county, have made an important discovery. The valuable vein in the mine has been located on the hills where a tunnel can be run to the vein striking it 150 to 175 feet below the main shaft. There is a big saving, and nearly all of the force is now at work on the tunnel. Work is still going ahead on the main shaft. Manager Nagely is at the mine all the time. Everything looks bright. October 1 shares in 100 blocks were advanced to 25 cents each; for cash shares in 1000 blocks can be had for a short time at 10 cents. Money is needed for rapid development. The gold ore now being taken out of the shaft is worth $60 a ton. Adjoining properties are shipping good ore every day. C. E. Day, secretary; J. J. H. Young, Decatur agent. dit
